MCW Group Ltd offers public courses and bespoke training for the whole of the office suite, from versions as far back as Office 97 through to Office 2007: the latest release.

Microsoft's Office 2007 is very different from earlier releases in both its capabilities and functions. Desktop users will gain far greater benefit from the system upgrade if they understand how it can be more fully used. Even if delegates have used previous Microsoft Office versions for many years, training is strongly advised to fully utilise the exciting new features and understand the new environment.

MCW Group Ltd trains many hundreds of delegates each year in how to be more productive with Microsoft Office. Whatever your company needs, whether it is classroom based training, floor walking or customised solutions to suit your organisation, we at MCW Group Ltd have the experience and skills to help you.

Our instructors have the know-how to train groups ranging from individuals to small teams to many thousands of people.

Floor-walking

Floor-walking is becoming an increasingly popular solution for our clients. Our trainers will be available at your site to answer questions at the user's desk. This system can help to reduce the day-to-day requests of a company's IT helpdesk, as the trainer solves the problems directly.
